LATE ROMAN REPUBLICAN AND EARLY IMPERIAL COINS.

It has been argued, and rightly so, that the coinage of the late Roman Republic and Empire are arranged and catalogued rather in the interest of the coin-man than the historian, but for the purpose of a Sale catalogue with only a limited number of specimens of each class, it is not possible to adopt a different method, so that, at the request and for the convenience of collectors, we have had to follow Cohen's arrangement from Pompey the Great, and to catalogue the late Roman Republican coins under the names of their issuers, adding references as far as possible to the British Museum Catalogues published, Augustus to Commodus, Sydenham and Mattingly's Roman Imperial Coinage, Augustus to the Reform under Diocletian, Bahrfeldt's Die Römische Goldprägung, and other more recent studies.

Under each individual reign the gold coins are given first, then the silver, and lastly the bronze. This order will be followed throughout the Roman Imperial issues, and including the Byzantine series.
